BASEBALL OUTLOOK MORE ENCOURAGING

Wealth of Good Material Assures Keen Competition for Positions

STRONG PITCHING STAFF

Fielding Berths to Be Decided On Basis of Hitting Ability

Held up by rain on Saturday and Monday baseball practice was resumed yesterday with ten days remaining before the opening game with Colby. Three practice games of five innings each have been held since training was commenced on Porter Field and these, together with the daily workouts are helping Coach Morey to decide on the line-up for the season's opener.

With Hulihan, Elmer and Hastings working well in the box and several new men, including Witham, Gibson, Perry and Doe, giving evidence of their pitching ability, there is everything to indicate that Middlebury will have an unusually capable staff of twirlers this year. Mead, on the receiving end, seems assured of a regular berth, though Gannon and Lobo are furnishing competition. The latter has, however, been laid up several days because of a sore arm.

The choices for the infield positions are still in doubt and will depend largely upon the individual batting ability which is evidenced within the next ten days. At first base Captain Timberman is going fairly well but being pushed by Gallagher, while at second, both Stockwell, of last year's team and Whitmore are doing splendidly, the latter, however, being handicapped by a weak knee. P. Ross, Weeks and Howard are running about even for short stop; the decision as to who shall capture the regular position will depend largely upon hitting. J. White, Vose, Mays and Norton are contending for the third base job, the question here being also to determine who is the best hitter.

For the outfield positions Coach Morey has a host of good candidates, the most promising of whom are Drost, Way, Hardy, L. aand D. de Lancy.

LARGE ADVANCE SALE FOR FOLLIES—NEW FEATURES

An extensive and well-conducted advertising campaign during the past week has pushed a large advance sale of tickets for "April Follies", the Athletic Fund benefit performance to be presented Friday evening in Middlebury Town Hall. The management has arranged for extra seats in the orchestra and the present demand indicates that these will be filled when the curtain rises at 7:30 that evening.

Since last week's announcement, the following numbers have been added to the program: P. M. "Dad" Ross '22, who will star in the Junior Play, in "a screaming farce"; Miss——? and Mr. ——? in "Her Dream" and "Twelve (Count 'Em) Knock outs". The last includes a chorus of twelve college girls led by Dorothy Doughlas '22.

Photographic record will be shown of the Dartmouth-Washington football game which took place New Year's Day in the new $1,000,000 stadium at the University of Washington.

ANNOUNCE TENNIS SCHEDULE FOR 1921

Three Meets Out of Town and One At Home During Month of May

TRAINING STARTS SOON

Four Members of 1920 Squad Form Nucleus For This Year's Team

The Schedule

May 7—Springfield at Springfield
May 21—Vermont at Middlebury
May 27—Williams at Williamstown
May 28—R. P. I. at Troy

Yesterday's announcement of a schedule of four meets, the first of which is to occur May 7, by Manager Albert F. Gollnick '22 of tennis, points toward an early start in training. Work on the courts was commenced nearly two weeks ago and it is expected that they will be ready for use within a few days. As soon as this work is completed, trials of candidates for this year's team will be started. The services of Professor Luther I. Bonney have been secured as coach.

On account of the small appropriation made for tennis in the athletic budget this year Manager Gollnick has been unable to arrange more than one game on the local courts, that with the University of Vermont on May 21. Negotiations for additional games have, however, been entered into with the University of Detroit, Norwich, Worcester Tech and Holy Cross. That tennis is rapidly coming into vogue as an intercollegiate sport is indicated in the frequent matching of Eastern and Western college teams, an example of which is the Detroit institution which is seeking to arrange a series of meets with colleges in this section of the country.

The team will be handicapped severely by the loss of Parker, Ginsburg and Rothermel, last year's regulars but has a reliable nucleus in Lane '22, Gollnick '22, Brautigam '22 and Ashley '23. In addition the following freshmen who made good showings in the fall tournament, will be available: Krichbaum, E. Adams, Ferry, Fletcher and Gannon.

G. J. FORBUSH JOINS FRENCH TEACHING STAFF FOR 1921

Announcement was recently made of the appointment of Guy J. Forbush, a graduate of Clark College in the class of 1915, as Assistant Professor of French, to begin work in September.

Mr. Forbush was an instructor in French in the Culver Military Academy, of Culver, Indiana, the first year after his graduation, leaving at the end of the year to become Instructor in History and French in the Leominster, Mass., High School. From 1917 to 1920 he taught French in Phillips Academy at Andover, Mass. He was a student in the Middlbeury French School in the summer of 1916.

During the past year Mr. Forbush has been engaged in travel in France and Belgium, and in study at the Sorbonne and the Ecole Normale de Paris. He has also taught at the Ecole du Chateau de Soisy, of which Professor de Visme was formerly Director. He will assist Professor Robinson in the French Department and will conduct the College courses in French at present given by Professor de Visme, leaving Prof. de Visme free for duties in connection with the Graduate School.

FACULTY MEMBERS SPEAK

Students Present French and Spanish Plays on Friday

An entertaining as well as instructive program has been arranged for the joint meeting of the Vermont sections of the Classical Association of New England and the Modern Language Association of New England to convene here Saturday, April 29, for the two-day period. The sessions are to be public and will be held in Old Chapel, the first being at two o'clock Friday afternoon when Professor Duane L. Robinson, president of the Modern Language Association, Acting-President Edward D. Collins and others will address the two bodies. A dinner will be given by the College to the visiting teachers that evening in the Dining Room of Hepburn Hall.

The subject of President Robinson's address on Friday will be, "Language—A Lost Art?" Others who will speak during the two-day session are Professor R. H. White and Professor E. C. Skillings of Middlebury, Professors F. D. Carpenter and S. E. Bassett, University of Vermont, Principal A. S. Harriman, Middlebury High School, and Miss Alice C. Walde, Bishop Hopkins Hall, Burlington. Saturday morning there will be a general discussion on the re-instatement of German in Vermont schools and on the question, "Should the Course of Study for the Pupil who is Preparing for College be different from that of other Pupils?"

Friday evening at eight o'clock, members of the French and Spanish classes will present the French play, "Le francais tel qu'on le parle", and the Spanish play, Los pantalones", in McCullough Gymnasium for delegates to the convention and others interested in the study of modern languages.

FIVE DOLLAR TAX TO MAKE JUNIOR PROM INDEPENDENT

Committee Also Plans to Publish Souvenir Program of Week's Events

Acting upon a recent suggestion of the Committee on Student Life, members of the Junior Week Committee convened Thursday with Professor Luther I. Bonney for the purpose of considering plans and estimates in connection with the week's program. These estimates have since been presented to the other members of the Student Life Committee. Among the suggestions discussed and acted upon was a proposition to raise the tax for the Junior Prom to five dollars, with a view toward making it independent of other Junior Week activities, and to publish a souvenir Junior Week program, free of charge, to guests of the College. This latter plan would be carried through with the understanding that any deficit which it occasioned would be defrayed by the College, the Glee Club and Athletic Association, these being the interests directly involved.

The committee working on the general program has made arrangements for concerts by the augmented College Band on special concert afternoons as well as during the athletic contests on Porter Field. No announcement has yet been made of the final selection of an orchestra for the Junior Prom.

REVIEWS CAREER OF DR. COLLINS

Campus Reporter Granted Interview By Provost and Acting President

WORKED IN LUMBER MILL

Paid Way Through Two Schools to Graduate With Honors From Yale

In an interview granted The Campus last week, the following outline of the career of Dr. E. D. Collins, provost, and acting president of the college, was obtained.

Dr. Collins was born in Hardwick, Vermont, December 17, 1869, thus being four days younger than Dr. Thomas. His father died when he was a small child, and his family was separated, he being taken into the family of I. D. R. Collins, and later adopted as his son. His early education was such as the country schools of the northern frontier afforded. At 16 he went to work in a lumber mill and the hard work and small pay furnished him incentive to get an education. He entered the Lyndon Institute and completed a commercial course, assisting his father who was a country merchant. On the advice of the principal of the Institute, his father encouraged him to take another year's schooling, and he did so. The friendliness of his teachers stimulated his ambitions still more, and the idea of some time going to college entered his thoughts. He then secured a country school and taught it after the fashion of the times, and later was offered a post with a large pulp and paper concern which was more lucrative than teaching, and gave him opportunity to use his knowledge of bookkeeping, store keeping, and mill industry. After a year of experience in the store and lumber camps, during which he acted as bookkeeper, pay master, shipping clerk, and storekeeper, he decided to make a break and fit for college.

He re-entered Lyndon Institute in December just before his 20th birthday, and the following school year passed the entrance examinations for Yale, entering the Class of 1896 without a condition. He was badly handicapped in his freshman year by his too rapid preparation and the necessity of earning his way. In the sophomore year he secured work with the college authorities making out schedules, and doing various work in the office of the dean. This year he was the Wyllys Betts prize man of the class, and attained Phi Beta Kappa rank. He sang in the Apollo Club during his first two years at Yale.

After graduation he received a Fellowship appointment in the graduate school, and started work for a doctorate. He received the degree of Ph. D. in 1899, in history. His interest in history centered in the colonial period, and he wrote a monograph which was published by the American Historical Association under the title of "Committees of Correspondence of the American Revolution". In the preparation of his thesis he began the investigation of the British Slave Trade to America and followed this study in England. He was granted special permission by the Lords of the Treasury to inspect all the books and records of the Royal African Company, the great slave trading corporation of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, being the first person who had systematically gone over the books and records

Faculty Resolution on Departure of President John M. Thomas

As members of the faculty of Middlebury College, we would express to you, President Thomas, on the eve of your departure to another field of service, our deep regret at your going and our earnest hope that the years to be may but multiply the successes of your Middlebury leadership. We shall not forget your labors for the college you were called to guide: your devotion to her interests; your far-reaching plans for her growth and betterment; the tireless energy that gave form to your ideals. The record of those fruitful years—a monument AERE PERENNIUS in Middlebury annals—should be for us in coming days an incentive and inspiration. And if, as we trust, we have been of help in the tasks you have accomplished, we would pledge to your successor a loyal cooperation in the unfinished work, that the old college may grow greater with the years, and that "Este perpetua" may be still the toast.

For Better Athletics

On Friday evening the College and community may manifest their endorsement of the movement for better athletics at Middlebury by more than mere vociferation. "April Follies", arranged and promoted by Coach Morey for the benefit of The Campus Athletic Scholarship Fund and the Outing Club, offer this medium but if those who have purchased tickets go with the expectation of witnessing anything in the nature of a second rate performance, they will be disappointed. The management has combined a spirit of loyal enthusiasm with the best talent in college in offering a program no less praiseworthy than the cause which it represents.

The ranking of a college was never more susceptible to the standard, high or low, of its athletics. Embarking upon an athletic program broader than any previously undertaken, Middlebury must recognize the essential nature of material support to a successful issue. Attendance at Friday's entertainment will mean genuine enjoyment of the program offered and the satisfaction that comes of having furthered a worthy cause.

The Campus elections for the college year 1921-22 will occur to-morrow afternoon. In accordance with established custom the present staff will direct the publication of the next issue following elections. The candidates for Editor are K. A. Brautigam '22 and Murray Adams '23; for Assistant Editor, M. C. Buffum '23, Elizabeth Jacobs '23, A. M. Loukes '23 and Cecelia McDonough '23. The candidates for Business Manager are G. A. Cowles '22, G. T. Lewis '22 and R. A. Clark '23; for Assistant Business Manager, M. C. Dickinson '22 and D. M. Pinney '22.

Y. W. C. A. Elections for 1921

The following officers for the college year 1921-22 were elected at a meeting of the Y. W. C. A. yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in Old Chapel: president, Anne Littlefield '22; vice president, Margaret Billings '22; secretary, Helen Lingham '24; treasurer, Evelyn Ryle '23; undergraduate field representative, Edith Sibley '22; understudy to U. F. R., Barbara Stilphen '23.

"Do You Ever Think of 'Me'?"

When you've been out with fair Co-ed
And have been nice as nice can be,
And she ships you home to bed
Without much hospitality—
When you're there just ask yourself,
"Can the trouble be with me? ? ?"

When your prof. just can't explain,
And you're a long ways out at sea
Just anchor there and ask yourself,
"Can the trouble be with me? ? ?"

When you never get a letter,
And you write most faithfully
Just pen these few words to yourself,
"Can the trouble be with me? ? ?"

When it rains for three weeks straight,
And you're blue as blue can be,
Don't forget to ask yourself
"Can the trouble be with me? ? ?"

When your average grade is "E",
And you've been working like the "D—",
Just once more I ask you—say—
"Can the trouble be with me? ? ?"

"April Follies" might well be a title or description for the climatic conditions in our midst.

On days like last Sunday there is no need of a fence around the campus to keep the trees from leaving.

Colds are ultra-modish this weather; and Ye Periscope has done his individual share in setting the fashion.

We have been wondering just where we could have caught our cold and have about come to the conclusion that we got it doing so much outside reading for Poly. Sci.

We had a Greek exam last week and are confident that we knocked it cold. —Somewhere around zero, y'know.

Our natural reticence causes us to hesitate before criticizing a rival, either favorably or unfavorably. But the heads in recent issues of The Middlebury Register are at least deserving of mention, and we can at least concur with one of our m. r. professors who expressed the wish that when he dies, Ed. Dan. P. R. would not write the head for his obituary. We would suggest a suitable head—

The only advantage in receiving notices is that the marks come out the day following the letters. There is just as big a crowd gathered around the mail box as there is in the Registrar's office.

Last Tuesday the seniors entered upon the last lap in pursuit of an education. It is "now or never" with some of those good resolutions to study.

The college is back on absolutely pre-war basis. The Hon. J. Calvi has returned after a prolonged tour through the land of spaghetti and real wine. But Joe did not use his fountain pen to best advantage. He only carried ink it it.—At least so he says.

Sunday Vespers

The speaker at Vespers Sunday was Dr. James L. Barton of New York. He took as his subject the importance of man in this world.

He first considered the inferiority of man in respect to the physiological and chemical standpoint. Also from a national and military standpoint man represents merely one unit. If we think of life as merely a vapor which appears for a little while and then vanishes we are doing ourselves a great wrong because we forget the other element which touches human life—the importance that God places on man. Christ came into this world not as an angel but as a man with the very essence and nature of God in His being. It is only through man that God can speak to the world. If we believe we have in us a spark of the divinity of God we have the power to develop to the utmost capacity what God has given us. Jesus Christ came to this world to show man his own worth and teach him his possibilities.

1920 MAQUA DELEGATES GIVE BENEFIT PERFORMANCE

Series of Sketches Depict Life at Y. W. C. A. Conference—Nets $7.20

A most original program was presented in Pearsons Social Hall on Thursday evening, when last year's Maqua delegates, Ruth Aldrich, Isabel Bardwell, Emma Schaefer '21; Ruth Coolidge, Marion Crathern, Ruth MacArthur, Edith Sibley '22; and Emily Hobbs '23 gave an entertainment for the purpose of arousing interest in the Y. W. C. A. conference which is to be held this summer.

Emma Schaefer, president of the association, first gave an explanation of the purpose and value of the conference with a description of the camp where it is held and an idea of the daily life of the delegates with their various duties and pleasures. Camp Maqua is charmingly situated on Lake Thompson in West Poland, Maine, and was chosen as a meeting place last year for delegates from colleges in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont principally, as the accommodations at Silver Bay proved to be insufficient. The main purpose of the conference is the discussion and solution if possible, of Y. W. C. A., campus and general college problems, and very helpful and interesting classes are also held. But the conference is not entirely given over to serious thought and study, and last year delegates proceded to show this in a very decided manner.

The first scene of the entertainment represented them arriving at West Poland laden with suit cases, umbrellas and musical instruments, and then the subsequent arrival at camp. A portion of the hall had been curtained off and here a very realistic camp atmosphere was obtained by the use of some impromptu stage settings. A Dining Room Scene, Field Meet and Evening Song Service followed this in succession and the final scene showed them writing, for the contest, the Camp Maqua song which won the cup for Middlebury College. Clever speeches given practically extempore and natural acting made the affair highly successful. The "gate receipts" amounting to $7.20 will be used toward the expenses of the next delegates.

DR. BARTON TALKS ON NEAR EAST

Mission Board Member Believes U. S. Entry into League of Nations Might Solve Present Tangle

Dr. James L. Barton, D. D. L L. D., Secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, member of the class of '81, and trustee of the college spoke upon the Near East situation before members of the Sunday Noon Club at the Baptist Church Sunday. He is especially well qualified to discuss such a topic because of the extensive investigation he has made in the Near East He was appointed by President Wilson to accompany a commission which studied the problem in 1919.

Dr. Barton outlined the present state of affairs in the Near East, saying that it was now largely a struggle between France and England to get all they could as the gains of war. He said that he thought if we had entered the League of Nations with the other European countries present conditions would be much better. Ideals in Europe exist in words only. In fact, he said, the countries admit they are out for all they can get. It is the duty of the United States to take a part in the administration of world affairs. Our unselfish influence in the councils of the world will accomplish much towards solving the problems now confronting the Near East. The United States to-day should take a stand similar to that it took when John Hay protested against the partition of China. Our duty is clearly outlined, and it is squarely up to the government to do its share in bringing about world peace, and relieving misery. We cannot hope to attain this end by remaining aloof from the councils of Europe, when we have been invited to attend them, and then object to their decisions.

TO GIVE FRENCH PLAY AT LANGUAGE CONVENTION

The French play which is to be given at the Modern Language Convention is "L'Anglais Tel Qu' On Parle". It has already been presented once, very successfully, before a small audience at the French House.

The cast of characters is as follows:

Eugene, l'interprète ..... De Vaux de Lancy
Julien Cicandel ..... Merton Le Fountain
Mr. Hogson ..... Ridley J. Norton
L'agent de police .... Clarence Rogers
Le garçon ..... Livingston de Lancy
Betty Hogson ..... Alice E. Ladd
La caissière ..... Ruth A. Aldrich

Prof. H. P. W. de Visme and Mlle de lo Souchère are directing the play. The plot arises from the misunderstandings between Mr. Hogson, an Englishman who can speak no French, and Eugene, an interpreter, who knows no English. The play will be accompanied by the singing of French songs by the pupils of the French School and by the presentation of one of La Fontaine's fables by Miss Clorinda Ramsay and Miss Edith Cowles

Real Inferno!

One day from his labors spent and sore
A Good Fellow passed to the other Shore;
And because of rapid earthly pace
They ticketed him to the Warmer Place.
Arrived in the regions of Despair,
He strolled about in the hectic air,
Content through life, to accept his lot,
He mattered not, thought 'twas steaming hot.
And grinned with glee as he found no dearth
Of many good things he loved on earth.
Dinner was served on a sizzling plate—
As fine a meal as he ever ate—
And smacking his lips, with joy he spoke,
"Now for a good old-fashioned smoke."
The attending Imp was summoned: "Say,
Go bring me a Cinco, and here's the pay."
Refused, he roared: "Why you make me sick,
To the Devil himself, I'll make a kick".
To Satan he cried: "Do I understand
That you don't handle this famous brand?"
"Shut up", said Satan, "You're off your base—
If we made this joint too attractive a place
'Twould stop the rush to the Heavenly Land
And o'er crowd Hell to beat the band;
Crowns, wings and harps would be cast aside.
St. Peter himself would hit the slide,
Depopulate Heaven as sure as fate
And never a knock at the Pearly Gate."
The Good Fellow groaned in his anguish, "Well!
Where you can't buy a Cinco, 'tis surely Hell!"

REVIEWS CAREER OF ACTING PRESIDENT COLLINS

of this corporation since its confiscation. After the completion of this investigation he spent several weeks in travel on the continent, much of it on foot, and visited France, Belgium, Germany, Switzerland, and Italy, with probably as small an expenditure as any traveller in those countries since the Middle Ages.

He returned to Yale with results of his study embodied in his doctor's thesis, "The Royal African Company" and received his doctor'ss degree in 1899. He was then intrusted with teaching of a course in Medieval History at Yale, and later taught a general course in European history with Dr. Clive Day. Upon the completion of his second year at Yale, he declined reappointment, and turned to business, for his nine years of study had begun to tell upon his health, and he felt the necessity of putting himself upon a stronger financial basis.

He accepted a position as treasurer and managing director of the Canadian Carbonate Company, located at Montreal, and was the first producer of gas by the so-called "coke-process" in Canada He retired from the company after two years as active manager, but the company followed the lines of reorganization he laid down and now has its own plants at Halifax, Montreal, Hamilton, Toronto, Winnipeg, and Vancouver, and has entered the Mexican and West Indian trade .

Toward the close of his second year in Montreal he was offered a position as publicity manager of a Philadelphia corporation, and went to that city to reside. The ill health of his wife forced him to leave this position and seek a position in the country. Subsequently he became principal of the State Normal School at Johnson, Vt. The late Walter E. Howard of Middlebury was a member of the Normal School Board of Vermont, and in this office he came in contact with Dr. Collins' work, and when the State of Vermont created the new Department of Pedagogy at Middlebury he was offered the position of head and organizer of this department. In his spare moments, while teaching at Johnson, he completed and published his history of Vermont. He was elected President of the Vermont Schoolmasters Club while at Johnson.

The Department of Pedagogy at Middlebury was created to prepare teachers for secondary schools, and this purpose has guided the organization and development of the department. He had been informed that Middlebury was the first college in the country to offer a special course in rural school supervision. In the development of the department, it was found desirable to secure an intimate knowledge of secondary school conditions in Vermont, and this department made an investigation The outstanding feature of his work at Middlebury has been the development of the summer session. He was in consultation with the authorities of the college in the establishment of the first summer session, although not at that time at Middlebury. Since coming to Middlebury he has had the general direction of the schools. The growth of the schools has utilized all the available facilities at Middlebury. More summer session work was undertaken along specialized lines, the most notable of course, being the special schools in French and Spanish. The recent organization of an English school at BreadLoaf, and the school of Chemistry are the latest steps in this policy. With the four schools, the entire summer work at Middlebury is offered in specialized form. In no other college is summer work conducted exclusively on this plan, and in no other summer school is the work in modern language given in the language exclusively.

During the war the absence of President Thomas brought him to the acting presidency of the College. With the discontinuance of the S. A. T. C., the problem of reorganization of the college was thrust upon him. Within a few weeks after the demobilization of the S. A. T. C., Middlebury reopened with a student attendance of three hundred. Middlebury came through this trying period with less financial strain than many institutions similarly situated. As a result of his work the office of Provost was created by the Trustees in which he could continue his assistance to the President in the internal administration and further organization of the College along needed lines.

Dr. Collins is deeply interested in the promotion of physical education and the development of a spirit of true sportsmanship, which can only be brought about by developing wide participation in play and amateur sports and outdoor recreation.
